Fernão Pires, Chardonnay, Arinto. Modern, fresh and plenty of fresh fruit – citrus and melon - and very slightly floral. Tastes as if it is not bone dry, which will probably win it more friends among a wider audience but is a slight negative for me. It could just be very ripe but it leaves me with that boiled-sweet aftertaste that I get with wines that are off dry when they would have been better dry. Lots of tangy citrus and fresh too.
