The 2014 Branco Herdade de Catapereiro is a single-vineyard blend of 70% Fernao Pires, 20% Arinto and 10% Sauvignon Blanc. It comes in with 6 grams per liter of residual sugar, but it shows dry overall. Surprisingly concentrated for a wine at this price level, it starts with an aromatic flourish and finishes with fine fruit, tinged with a hint of green. This bottling has become a relatively consistent bargain. It's hard to go wrong at the price. Just drink it young and fresh, however long it theoretically lasts.
