The 2013 Alvarinho Toucas is all unoaked Alvarinho, with just a bit over 13 grams per liter of residual sugar – in other words, a pretty fair hit of sugar for this level of Alvarinho. Still, it is awfully tasty, sweet and ripe, even if not possessed of the steel and focus of other styles (including the winery's own Nostalgia, also reviewed this issue). It executes its own style pretty well, though, tastes just great and should be a picnic and party favorite. Drink now-2017.
